

OLMSTEAD ASSOCIATES, INC. UNVEILS NEW WEBSITE

Olmstead Associates, a leading business and systems consulting and training firm that focuses entirely on the securities industry, has unveiled a new and updated website. The new website is aligned with the following services to better present how Olmstead Associates works with their clients on operations and IT projects that span the front, middle and back office:

Strategic Consulting

Tactical Consulting

Professional Development

Professional Placement

The website provides additional detail about these services, including descriptions of Olmstead Associates' popular securities industry training programs. Olmstead Associates' website address will remain the same at www.olmst.com.

“The upgrade to our website reflects how we have grown the business since our inception in 1994,” says Ron Olmstead, company founder and President. “We help our clients develop their operations and systems architecture strategies, including process improvement and best practice vendor analysis, as well as providing tactical assistance to execute those strategies. Our project managers, business analysts and UAT specialists, grew up in the securities industry and can hit the ground running on any operations or technology project. Our continued success is a tribute to the combined strategic and tactical relationships we have built with both the business and IT groups at our clients.”

ABOUT OLMSTEAD ASSOCIATES, INC.

Olmstead Associates is a Boston-based consulting, staffing, training and recruiting firm focusing on the securities industry and supporting clients throughout the U.S. and overseas. They bridge the gap between business and technology by providing management consulting, project management and subject-matter experts on a project and staff augmentation basis. They have worked extensively supporting pre-trade, trade and post-trade operations and systems initiatives to many of the top industry firms for over fifteen years.